EDITION, *half-title reading "English Atlas, Tome the First", engraved allegorical frontispiece, title in red and black, large folding double-page map of Africa, 42 engraved double-page maps, plans and plates, 10 engraved plates, of which 4 double-image plates trimmed and bound-in separately, illustrations, engraved initials and head-pieces, C4 & D3 with tiny rust-holes affecting margin and odd letter, G1 with tear to upper corner affecting printed sidenotes, neat old repair, N1 with marginal tear and neat old repair, signature 'R' complete but misbound, W6 verso with small ink-stain, early ink ownership inscription to front pastedown, bookplate, contemporary panelled calf, sympathetically rebaked, retaining original red morocco spine label, expert restoration to corners, [Wing O163; Hosken p.152; Shapero, Africana, 277], folio, by Tho. Johnson, for the Author, 1670.*

 An excellent copy with crisp, bright maps and plates. This copy includes the 'Emperor of Morocco' plate which is frequently missing. The first edition of this important work on Africa. It was the most comprehensive work on Africa in English published in the seventeenth century, and is largely based on the work of Offert Dapper.

Provenance: Inscribed "Sir Edward Henry Lee his book, given him by E. Lindsay" to front pastedown, in a juvenile hand. Sir Edward Henry Lee (1663-1716) succeeded his Father as the 5th Baronet in 1667. In 1674, at the age of 10 he was made 1st Earl of Lichfield (second creation) on his engagement to Charlotte Fitzroy, an illegitimate daughter of King Charles II. This inscription is presumably dated sometime between 1670 and 1674.
